

ABSTRACT

Active substance-containing therapeutic system for application on the skin, comprising at least two polymer-5 containing layers, characterized in that the polymers used for the different layers differ in their glass transition temperature (see Figure 1).